TO PLANT PEONIES

Peonies should be planted as soon as possible after they are received. If the roots are dry, soak them in water for a short time before planting. Too deep planting is a common cause for failure to bloom. Cover the eyes or buds only 1 to 2 inches. They may be more deeply covered during the first winter by mounding the earth above each plant. If this is done the earth should be leveled off in the Spring before the plant starts growth.
